7. 2021-24: ACHA D2 and conference play

The Bryn Athyn College athletics department has published official game recaps for all sports, including men's ice hockey, since 2010-11. These game recaps, usually published on the day of the games, have been an invaluable resource for the history presented in the part that covers the hockey history between 2011-2020. The Lions played 166 games during the ACHA D3 era (2011-17) and 71 games during the NCAA DIII era (2017-20). In total, there were 154 recaps published during the ACHA D3 era and 70 during the NCAA DIII era. However, there are no box scores and only two official game recaps published on the BAC Athletics website for the 75 games played during the three ACHA D2 seasons 2021-24. There were, however, eight recaps posted during the 2021-22 hockey season (covering 10 of the 22 games) that were written by freshman student and team manager volunteer Deanna Costantino. The lack of official game recaps or easily accessible box scores (the ACHA website includes box scores from 2021-24 but no longer from the ACHA D3 era 2011-17) could lead to a lack of general knowledge of aspects of the college's hockey history and make it difficult to adequately understand each season. To preserve the history of the hockey program, detailed notes from the ACHA box scores, game sheets, and information from game pictures for the three seasons 2021-24 are included here. Therefore, this chapter is written in a different style than the previous chapters.

7.1 The 2021-22 season

Bryn Athyn College began the 2021-22 academic year with 238 full-time students.[975] Dr. Wendy Closterman stepped down from her role as Chief Academic Officer and Dean of Academics and Dean of Faculty on June 30, 2021. Dr. Jonathan Kline took over the role as Chief Academic Officer and Dean of Academics on July 1, 2021, and Dr. Marcy Latta became the new Dean of Faculty. The Lions still competed in the NCAA DIII Colonial States Athletic Conference (CSAC). Men's volleyball was introduced to the athletics offerings. There had been a plan to add this sport at the beginning of the 2016-17 academic year, but it was postponed.[976] 2021-22 was a very successful year for the Lions. Eight teams participated in the post season: men's and women's cross country, men's and women's soccer, women's volleyball, women's basketball, women's lacrosse, and women's tennis. Bryn Athyn won three NCAA DIII championships. Rafe Williams won the individual conference championship in men's cross country, and women's soccer and women's lacrosse became conference champions.[977] These were the first NCAA DIII conference championships in BAC history.

It was also a very successful year for the Lions in terms of CSAC awards.[978] Rafe Williams was the men's runner of the year, Ashley Rivera women's soccer player of the year, and Payton Gormley women's lacrosse player of the year. Women's tennis player Annae Connelly and women's lacrosse player Shea Gormley were conference rookies of the year. Men's basketball and women's tennis received the conference's 3-D award which "recognizes the teams in each sport that best demonstrate the NCAA Division-III philosophy of 'Discover, Develop, Dedicate.'"[979] 21 student athletes made the CSAC All-conference teams (seven twice in different sports/disciplines).

7.1.1 The first seven games of the 2021-22 regular season

The first version of the 2021-22 hockey schedule was published on July 16, 2021. The original plan was to play 22 games including 11 at the Jungé Pavilion, which were more games at the Pavilion than the team had played during the last two seasons as a member of NCAA DIII. Thus, the local fans would get more opportunities to see the team play at home, and most away games were within easy driving distance from Bryn Athyn College (in the end the team played 21 games of which eight were at the Pavilion).[980] New recruits were announced on Bryn Athyn College Men's Ice Hockey Instagram on August 6, 2021, and coaches held an interest meeting on September 2, 2021, at the College Center on campus.

The Lions played in the Colonial States College Hockey Conference (CSCHC), which was divided into the Liberty and Independence Divisions. The Liberty Division consisted of Bryn Athyn College, Millersville University, Rutgers University, University of Scranton, Stockton University, The College of New Jersey (TCNJ), University of Pennsylvania, and West Chester University. The members of the Independence Division were Monmouth University, New Jersey Institute of Technology (NJIT), Princeton University, and Seton Hall University. The regular season was designed so that each team played the other teams in its own division home and away and then one game against each of the teams in the other division.

He thus scored hat tricks in his first two games as a Lion (Terrence Johnson accomplished the same feat in December 2011 (see p. 170).

One of the memorable games during the 2021-22 season took place on November 13 at the Loucks Ice Center, Lawrenceville, NJ, when TCNJ hosted the Lions for a conference game. This was a big meeting against one of the top opponents in the conference. TCNJ had bigger ambitions than ACHA D2 and announced nine days after the game that they were transitioning to ACHA D1 the following season (2022-23).[988] The assistant coach for TCNJ, Paul Batcho, had been a goalkeeper for the Lions, and worked as assistant coach for the Lions between 2004-08.

The Lions won the game 4-3. The Lions led 3-2 after two periods, and the final period was very intense. It started with Michal Nabozny saving a penalty shot after 48 seconds. TCNJ then pressured and tied the game at 8:23 with only two seconds left of a powerplay, at which time TCNJ had outshot the Lions 10 to 1 in the period. However, the Lions neutralized TCNJ 's offense for the remainder of the game. The Lions scored the game winning goal at 10:26, and after that TCNJ only managed three shots on goal. In fact, in the last five minutes they did not register a single shot on goal, despite pulling their goalkeeper at the end of the game. The Lions outshot their opponents 7 to 3 in the last 10 minutes of the game. The win was impressive, especially since the Lions only used 11 skaters plus the goalkeeper in the game (TCNJ listed 22 players on the scoresheet). Landen Sill recorded four assists, and Zach Pamaylaon two goals and one assist.

The Lions travelled to University of Pennsylvania on November 19, 2021. Penn was a powerhouse in the conference and had already played 13 games. Their conference record was 12 wins and one loss (one of these wins was a forfeit). The Lions were without injured Landen Sill and only used 10 skaters and a goalie. Nevertheless, the Lions played well and scored twice in the third period to get the game within one goal. Bryn Athyn pulled the goalkeeper at the end, and Penn scored an empty netter to win the game 5-3.

The loss to Penn meant that one of the most outstanding conference win streaks in Bryn Athyn College history was snapped. The last previous conference loss was a 3-4 defeat to Neumann University on October 24, 2015, a loss that was followed by 29 straight conference wins for the Lions.

[1009] The goal summary above is based on the ACHA box score from the game (published on the ACHA website), the game sheet that was used at the game, pictures of the scoreboard, and goals at the game. Note: the ACHA Box score contains several errors. Jacob Burke's 2-3 goal at 7:15 in the second period is listed as the 1-0 goal in the first period. Sill is given an assist on Esack's 1-0 goal, but he was not on the ice (however, this assist is part of the official ACHA stats, and it is possible that he had passed the puck to Zach Pamaylaon before he got off the ice). The shots on goal are also wrong. The shots listed above are based on pictures of the scoreboard. However, these are still wrong as, at least some (maybe all) goals were not included as shots on goal. Moreover, four Bryn Athyn assists on the ACHA box score are not listed on the game sheet: Pamaylaon (Landen Sill's first goal), Pamaylaon and Higgins (Landen Sill's second goal), and Cole (Garcia's goal). However, these players were on the ice when the goals were scored and could have been added after the game because the refs missed them. The box score from the game on January 22, 2022, published on the ACHA website (https://www.achahockey.org/stats/game-center/4725) was viewed on February 6, 2022.

At the end of January, the Colonial States College Hockey Conference announced that Rutgers University had been removed from the conference. This meant that the Lions' conference record was now 7 wins, 3 losses 1 OT loss (instead of 9 wins, 3 losses 1 OT loss).

> "… the Colonial States College Hockey Conference has confirmed that Rutgers University will not be able to complete its conference schedule. Due to conflicting school protocols, the Scarlet Knights will not be able to play all of its remaining games prior to the playoffs. As a result, Rutgers will now become ineligible for the postseason. All games played against Rutgers prior to this announcement have been removed from the team's conference records. All remaining games between Rutgers and other CSCHC teams will be considered "non-league" and will also not count for conference standings. All conference stats, including goals and assists, will be re-adjusted to exclude games played against Rutgers.
> Both the Liberty and Independence divisions will now play 16-game schedules to close out the season."[1011]

The Lions finished the regular season against University of Scranton at the Revolution Ice Centre, Pittston, PA, on February 12. The start of the game was delayed because the refs did not show up (or had not been booked). After quite some time, new refs arrived and the game could start. Because of the delay, and the schedule of the rink, the game was cut short, most likely after around 7 minutes of play in the third period, not long after Scranton scored their fourth goal. There was no intermission between the first and second periods.

[1019] The game facts are based on pictures from the game and scoreboard. The published ACHA box score from the game (https://www.achahockey.org/stats/game-center/6471. Viewed on August 13, 2022) is incorrect and lacks details. The times for the goals are wrong. Zach Pamaylaon is listed as the goal scorer with no assist at 5:00 in the first period. Stockton's two goals are listed at 5:00 and 10:00 in the second period. Shots on goal are not included (and the scoreboard did not include shots). Penalties are not listed. The goal keepers are listed as having played 40 minutes each. Sean ford scored the goal after an assist from Zach Pamaylaon (Sean Ford, e-mail message to Fredrik Bryntesson on March 7, 2024). The pictures from the goal sequence show that Eric Higgins won a faceoff, Zach Pamaylaon picked up the puck and passed it to Sean Ford who took a shot from the blue line. So, it is possible that Higgins should have an assist as well.

Bryn Athyn College stats for the 2021-22 season (ACHA website).[1022]

[1021] These stats are based on the research presented here. They are somewhat different than the official stats on the ACHA website. Zach Pamaylaon was officially given a non-assisted goal in the quarter final. This goal was scored by Sean Ford and assisted by Pamaylaon. Landen Sill scored a goal against Monmouth (assist by DJ May) that was omitted from the ACHA stats. The number of games played are based on pictures from 20 games (there are no pictures from the Seton Hall game on November 21, 2021 – therefore the ACHA box score was used for this game).
